
Authoring System Tools for CAI

Jamison H. Abbott
ibidinc

ABSTRACT

This paper describes authoring system tools that have been used to construct two Medical CAI programs. The tools include: a window-oriented text-display system; a robust keyboard input and menu matcher; a vector based AFA graphics display system; an IBM graphics-character based block graphics display routine; a window and display format manager; and a table driven display-page update mechanism.